1941 ANNUAL EXHIBITION OF

Paintings by
ARTISTS UNDER FORTY

NOVEMBER 12 TO DECEMBER 30, 1941

WHITNEY MUSEUM OF AMERICAN ART
TEN WEST EIGHTH STREET • NEW YORK

FOREWORD

This year's Annual Exhibition of Contemporary American Painting was chosen by members of the Museum staff from the work of artists forty years of age, or younger.

This innovation does not, of course, indicate a changed policy for future annuals. We clearly realize that no exhibition could presume to give a true account of contemporary American painting without the inclusion of artists who have lent distinction to the broader scope of our past exhibitions but who happen to be over forty years of age. The limitation imposed this year does, however, offer the Museum an excellent opportunity to present the work of a number of artists who have exhibited infrequently in previous Annuals, or now for the first time. The exhibition is of definite importance, also, in that it gives an uninterrupted view of a group of painters of widely divergent aims and temperaments, who are typical of a younger generation of American art.

JULIANA R. FORCE, Director.
